will there take steamer for his home on the 14th.

The archbishop was very tired last evening after his long day's travel, but in spite of that fact and the lateness of the hour, he received The Heraid representative cordiality, and talked pleasantly of his trip and his impressions of our country. He is completing a trip around the world that has consumed twenty months? He sailed from Melbourne through the Suez canal, spent a month in Rome, visited other important points in Europe, especially his old home in Ireland, and then crossed over to America.

This was Archbishop Carr's first visit

As to the religious situation in this country, Archbishop Carr said he studied it from a Catholic standpoint altogether, and everywhere he found his church growing and prosperous. He spoke with much pride of his cathedral in Meibourne, a structure that has been forty years in building, and cost $1,250,600. It is larger and finer, he thinks, than St. Patrick's in New York.

The archbishop is a graduate of Maynout & Seminary, Ireland, and was afterward vice president of that tastl.

On the question of baptism he believed immersion, pouring or sprinking would answer the purpose, if dotten the right spirit. Pouring is the method ordinarily used by the Catholic church. Baptism he believes to be absolutely necessary to the soul's salvation. There are 2,000,000 unbaptized in this country today. Bloody Sequel to the Brigham City Murder.

TRAGEDY IN CALIFORNIA

TAMES MORGAN'S ENEMY SLAIN AT FOLSOM.

Murder He Never Committed, and the Man Who Swore His Life Away Was Killed By Another

The murder of Convict Thomas at the Foisom penitentiary last month was the sequel of the conviction of James Morgan at Brigham City for the mur der of Captain William A. Brown, Such is the story that comes from San Fran-or Majors, as thus developed, is one n which blood and murder abound, eading like the pages of a weird romance.

The young man, or boy, for he is not yet 19 years of age, is a mild-mannered fellow. He seems to be fitted for better surroundings than fate has cast about him. The blood and murder, the dark plots and desperate deeds which show up on the beetling brows of murderers do not mark his countenance. It seems open and frank for the calm, sometimes plaintive gray eyes, and aimost golden hair lend an air of youth and innocence to the appearance of this boy, who is sentenced to be shot on July 7, for the murder of Captain Brown.

His Father Hanged. His Father Hanged.

But the boy's father was hanged for murder, his brother was killed in his flight from officers of the law, he him-self has been in Folsom prison and is now under sentence of death and it has just developed that Convict Put-nam killed Showers through friend-ship for the boy. Putnam and Showers were life con-victs at Folsom, having been sent up years ago. Showers was implicated in Pulnam and Showers were life convicts at Folsom, having been sent up years ago. Showers was implicated in the murder for which Lloyd Majors, the father of James Morgan, or rather Abe Majors, was hanged. He was sent to Folsom for life.

A little more than three years ago young Majors, who was then 18 years of age, was convicted of a number of small burgiaries about Oakland. There were in all some forty charges against him. There was a strong endeavor at that time to send him to a reform school instead of to a penification; but so numerous were the charges that he was sentenced to Folsom fdr ten years. There for the first time he learned
